Boston, November 26, 1881.

BROWN CHEMICAL CO.

Gentlemen:—For years I have been agreatsufferer from Dyspepsia, and could get no relief (having tried everything which was recommended) until, acting on the advice of a friend, who had been benefitted by BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, I tried a bottle, with most surprising results. Previous to taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, everything I ate distressed me, and I suffered greatly from a burning sensation in the stomach, which was unbearable. Since taking BROWN'S IRON BITTERS, all my troubles are at an end. Can eat any time without any disagreeable results. I am practically another person.

Mrs. W. J. FLYNN, 30 Maverick St., E. Boston.

BROWN'S IRON BIT-TERS acts like a charm on the digestive organs, removing all dyspeptic symptoms, such as tasting the food, Belching, Heat in the Stomach, Heartburn, etc. The only Iron Preparation that will not blacken the teeth or give headache.

Madame Tussaud.

The career of the wonderful old lady who used nightly herself to receive the money she made by her famous wax-work exhibition in Baker street was one of the most singular. It is said that the late Duke of Wellington frequently enjoyed a gossip with Madame Tussaud; and it is not to be wondered at, for she was one of the few people who lived late into the first half of this century who could distinctly remember the great Revolution of '93, and who knew intima.ely almost every personage who figured in it, from the King and Queen down to Robespierre and the infamous Marat. By birth a member of one of the most illustrious houses of Germany and the granddaughter of the famous Field Marshal von Gresholtz, Madame Tussaud had exceptional opportunities for studying the various characters of her time. She was born at Berne, but, losing her parents when quite a child, was taken by an uncle to Paris, and placed under the care of M. Curtis, her mother's brother, one of the leading spirits of the day. He was originally a medical man, but his fame rested chiefly upon his merits as a modeler in wax.

In those days it was not permitted for students in the hospitals to mutilate the dead for anatomical purposes, and waxen images of the various parts of the human body were fabricated in order to facilitate their sudies. These Curtius made to perfection, and later on he opened a museum in the Rue St. Honore.

Curtius was a brilliant conversationalist. and many writers on the French Revolution are inc'ined to believe that at his hospitable table, at which Voltaire, Rousseau, Franklin Will stand this season at TTS' TAVERN, WEST END, On Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, of political club, and here his celebrated and Lafayette were wont to assemble, the niece formed relationship with all the most famous people of her time. She lived until 1851, being over ninety years of age when she died.

To the last she was active, and her memory never failed her. Her character was a very singular one, and she was a brilliant conversationalist. As an artist in wax-modeling she was most skillful. But it is not only as a modeler that she deserves fame; she also painted exquisitely in miniature. Her n odels are superb; and perhaps the best portraits of the leading men and women of the Revolution are those blackened wax masks which hang in the Chamber of Horro.s, most of which were taken from life by her, and deserve to be carefully reproduced. a ie n odel of Marat in the bath, taken imn ediately after assassination, is from her hand, as is also the original cast of Voltaire.

Snake Charmers.

Some years ago, when Cairo was the Cairo of the "Arabian Nights," and not the disreputable-looking second-rate French country town it is now, we inquired for any possible successor to the old snake charmer whom old Anglo-Indians may remember to have seen playing with his cobras before Shepherd's Hotel. (Was he not at the Zoo in the wonderful year 1851, and did he not promptly decline, without thanks, our offer of two or three lively capellos then in the collection?) After some trouble we lighted on a furtive Arab caitiff, in the usual long blue shirt, girded about the waist to form the upper part into a species of spleuchan or spor In this he seems to keep his dirty pipe his packet of frousty tobacco, and whatever small portable property he had acquired more or less honestly. With him we resorted to divers ancient stables and outbuildings in the suburbs, and conjured him to find a snake. Placing a small wooden pipe, between his lips he tootled quaintly an old Arab air, now low, but hardly soft, and now high and loud. Thus he wandered, tootling and furtive, and we following and expectant. At last, arriving at an old half dark squals, circled round and round under a big palm tree beam, and at last, with an ear-splitting note, he squatted suddenly down. dashed his hand apparently upward, and JANNEYS FERTILIZING CHEMICALS—The clutched a big cobra, which he evidently inabove. I say apparently, for I am certain that he lost the brute out of the 'bosom' of his blouse. Now this was very pretty, but hardly satisfactory; so, instead of giving our charmer "backsheesh" (having a man in authority among us.) we promised him bastinado if he did not capture a snake in the open. Very limp about the loins and very yellow did that Arab caitiff show through his brown skin, but we were relentless. "Cobro or Toko?" and so he searched with the greatest care—not to find what, in fact, he did not want to find. At last one of us spied the tail of a good-sized snake protruding from some unnamable rubbish, "Now, my friend, catch us that snake, or"-He tootled not-the "or" had taken the music out of him-and, overcoming with a visible effort his shuddering horror, he caught the tail in one hand and rapidly ran the other up the body till be reached the neck. Pinning this between his finger and thumb, he caught up the tail of his blouse, and forcing the brute to close his jaws upon it, tore it out rapidly, again and again, evidently with the intention of tearing out the poison fangs, which he did at last, to a certain extent, to his own satisfaction; but he was wary And so he went his way and we went ours, with a gentle feeling that if we had been "done

way to my imagination, I distinctly remember seeing in 1851 the cobra striking and drawing blood from the arms of the old Arab snake-
